GALAXY Premix System

Technical Expertise to Overcome Formulation Challenges

Unstable molecule?

GALAXY Frozen Premix Systems are designed for unstable drugs and can create new paths for growth. Our proprietary technology makes it possible for a drug that would normally require pharmacy compounding to be available in a ready-to-use platform.

Biologic?

When a biologic is in a glass container and breakage occurs, a biohazard could be introduced, and expensive product lost. Baxter overcame this challenge by launching FLEXBUMIN [Albumin (Human)] as the first biologic available in a flexible (GALAXY) IV container. The GALAXY Premix System is a safe, practical solution for appropriate biologics.

Heat sensitivity?

GALAXY Liquid & Frozen Premix Systems are filled using Baxter's exclusive aseptic-filling technology. This makes it possible for drugs that cannot withstand the heat associated with the typical terminal sterilization cycles to be manufacturer-prepared in a flexible container.

Commercial Expertise to Overcome Market Challenges

Launch differentiation?

Launching an IV infused drug in a Ready-to-Use container can provide a strategic advantage for your product by offering a safer and simplified delivery system. Ready-To-Use Premix means that patients' medications are ready when they need it, and institutions benefit in terms of cost savings, training hours and potentially costly errors.

Post-launch differentiation?

A product expansion strategy, even several years post-launch, can create a reliable secondary delivery option for incremental value. Ready-To-Use Premix can offer existing customers flexibility in dosage administration and entice customers of competing products to make the switch.

Lifecycle management?

As patent expiry approaches, there are few strategies that can effectively contribute to market share retention while maintaining a price premium. A new delivery platform, such as Ready-To-Use Premix, can help your product extend its market success, well beyond patent expiry.
